

Do Not Touch!

Adams Electric continues to ask all members for assistance in creating a safer and more reliable power system for our members, electricians and contractors working at your property.

Adams Electric employees are trained to work around high voltages and can assist your electrician so that work on or near your electric service can be done safely. For the safety of the member and electrician, cooperative personnel are the only ones who are permitted to access this equipment while energized.

Authorized Access Only!

Once installed, electric meters and services seldom need to be moved or relocated, but we realize that renovations and other factors can intervene. If the electrical device involved needs to be worked on, refer the task to a licensed electrician. But first, call the co-op because an Adams' lineman must visit the property to disconnect power.

If you have questions, or need to coordinate work with Adams Electric, please call 1-800-726-2324. And, in the case of any power emergency, immediately call the cooperative for assistance.
